

Business area: Faithful+Gould - Surveying

Requirements: On track to achieve a 2.2 degree or above in RICS accredited Building or Quantity Surveying degree, or a degree in any subject for those who can demonstrate commercial and technical acumen.

Our teams and what they do

Building Surveying:

As a building surveyor, you need to enjoy being out of the office. The nature of our projects and the work we do is hands on, you'll likely be liaising directly with the client and project team as well as members of the public on a frequent basis. Time spent back in the office won't be dull, for one thing there will always be a new project to work on, our teams are growing and our project variety with it! Our building surveyors manage several projects at any one time, in a variety of different sectors ranging from a local primary school extension, to a medieval fortress, to a prison building to a recording studio – pretty much anything property related across the public and private sector. Our services include party wall, dilapidations, technical due diligence, surveys, landlord and tenant relations and compliance.

Our scope is unlimited, as is our potential. We are one of the leading providers of building surveying services within the UK, our national team will support you throughout your placement. If you're looking for a varied project portfolio, which frequently takes you out of the office and enjoy being part of a large, social team then this is the discipline for you.

Quantity Surveying – Infrastructure:

Our Quantity Surveyor Infrastructure team enables you to work on some of the most prestigious and technically challenging Civil Engineering projects in the UK, influencing the way we live and shape the Built Environment. Our highly regarded Infrastructure team has a significant Client base across multiple sectors, working for clients such as TFL, Network Rail, Highways England, EDF Energy, Thame Water and Gatwick Airport to name just a few.

As a Quantity Surveying placement student in Infrastructure you'll have the exciting opportunity to get involved with a vast array of projects ranging between £1m - £100m+. This could involve spending time in the office or out on the client's site, ensuring that client projects are delivered on time, budget and to the specification. You'll be assisting with tasks ranging from providing clients with strategic cost advice at project conception, to guiding clients through procurement routes and administering contracts of major value on their behalf.

At F+G, you'll join a highly motivated, knowledgeable and dynamic team that will ensure that you receive the right training and development opportunities required to achieve your Chartership, which will open doors around the world as an internationally recognised professional standard.

To apply, please return to the main job specification